

Situation #1

You were playing video games and your father asked if you were finished with your homework. You lied and told him you were finished, but you still had more to do.

Situation #1

You were playing video games and your father asked if you were finished with your homework. You lied and told him you were finished, but you still had more to do.

Situation #1

You were playing video games and your father asked if you were finished with your homework. You lied and told him you were finished, but you still had more to do.

Result #1

Your father knew you lied but allowed you to finish playing the game and then offered to help you with your homework.

Result #1

Your father knew you lied but allowed you to finish playing the game and then offered to help you with your homework.

Result #1

Your father knew you lied but allowed you to finish playing the game and then offered to help you with your homework.

Result #2

Your father knew you lied so he turned off the game right in the middle of playing and told you to go finish your homework.

Result #2

Your father knew you lied so he turned off the game right in the middle of playing and told you to go finish your homework.

Result #2

Your father knew you lied so he turned off the game right in the middle of playing and told you to go finish your homework.