

The Espinosas: This family moved to Allendale, South Carolina from their home here in Greenville when they saw the needs of that community and felt God leading them to move. They moved from their home and everything they were comfortable with to follow God into a new town with all new friends. A few years later, they moved back to Greenville to do the same thing in a new neighborhood here. Whether in Allendale or Greenville, the Espinosas love their neighbors by spending time with them and telling them about the hope they have in Jesus.

Senior Honor: Senior Honor is Grace Church's ministry to older people who live in homes where they are taken care of. Some of the people aren't able to go to church so Grace takes church to them every week. People from Grace spend lots of time becoming their friends and building relationships with them well as their families and the workers at the home. Grace Church volunteers love others by spending time with them and sharing the love of God.

Loving our neighbors in Tree House: This picture represents our neighbors in Tree House. We can love our neighbors in our classroom in so many ways. (Ask the children how they can love each other in the classroom.) We can love others in our classroom by sharing, respecting other's space, showing grace, welcoming others who are here for the first time, and listening and obeying the teacher at all times. We can practice loving our neighbors in Tree House today and every week.

Matt: Matt lives in a town called Maai Mahiu in Kenya. He chose to move from America to Africa so he could love his neighbors around the world. He takes care of kids like you by giving them a place to live, feeding them, and teaching them about Jesus. He also helps them when they feel scared or sad. Matt cares for people and supports them as a friend. He loves others like God loves him.
