

Your brother took your toy away from you and you grab it back from him.

You are at the store with your mom and you want a candy bar so you jump up and down and stomp your feet hoping she will get it for you.

You are supposed to go out for ice cream with your grandmother, but she calls and says she is not feeling well and can't take you. You tell her that you forgive her and you will be happy to go when she is feeling better.

You are waiting to go down the slide and another child comes up and pushes his way through to go first. You let him/her go first.

You are doing a craft at church and there is one sticker left.
Instead of fighting over it, you let another child have it.

Your sister accidentally hits you in the head while she is goofing around and dancing. She apologizes but you yell at her and tell her she did it on purpose.

You are playing outside in the backyard and your dad calls you and says it is time for dinner. You come in right away and help him set the table.

The neighbor boy is unkind and bullies kids in the neighborhood.
One day he falls off his bike and gets hurt. The other kids laugh at him but you go over and help him and see if he is ok.